

MARVELL-ELAINE'S FIRST RESPONDERS RECOGNIZE THEIR COMMUNITY

On anniversaries of the infamous terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, when 3,000 people were killed and millions of others injured or traumatized by the airplane assaults aimed at New York and Washington, it has become a custom to honor America's first-responders—those who not only protected or assisted the victims of that attack but protect or assist all of us every day in America.

This year, the AmeriCorps VISTAs from the Boys, Girls, Adults Community Development Center collaborated with the Marvell-Elaine School District to honor the community's first responders for their year-round dedication and hard work to provide protection and assistance to children and every family in the area from the police officers to the firefighters within the community.

This year's 9/11 Day of Service involved the first responders visiting the students of Marvell-Elaine School District under the flag pole to voice their experiences and share their appreciation for being able to serve their community the best they can.
