

FROM DOG DAYS TO SCHOOL DAYS

The dog days of summer - is hardly a time to celebrate, unless you are excited that school is about to start. That is always something to celebrate at the Boys, Girls, Adults Community Development Center, because it is time to prepare children for an important year of growth.

Why not have a little fun before the first bell rings while giving youngsters a leg up on another year of learning, growth and development?

BGACDC's VISTA volunteers led children through arts and crafts, team-building exercises and water games that both beat the summer heat and required them to use their critical thinking and problem-solving skills. The idea is to encourage children to be creative. It is always enriching for the students and instructors. Youngsters anticipate school with excitement rather than dread.
